LOCAL MATTERS.

The Gila river is booming.

Mr. J. Downey Harvey, of the Remnant mine, Silver District, arrived in town on Saturday's stage, and left for San Francisco by next train.

John Henley has been declared insane, and left town on Sunday morning, in charge of Sheriff Taylor, for Livingston and Clark's "brain institute," Stockton.

Collecting pebbles from the mesas is now all the rage. Very pretty stones are found in this vicinity, and specimens of agate, jasper, chalcidony and opal are quite plentiful.

Our popular deputy-sheriff, Walt Miller, is now installed in a neat and well furnished cottage. This looks suspicious, to say the least. At present the house is "Bachelor's Hall." Well, next!

Let our delegate see a liberal appropriation for the Penitentiary, and for other Territorial purposes, and he will give more votes by a thousand per cent, than he can by attacking ex-Governor Gosper, of whom both the democrats and republicans of Arizona speak in the highest terms.

"Shopping in New York," is the name of a pamphlet sent out by Enrich & Bros., New York. Its title explains itself, as the work tells you how to purchase goods in New York city, by mail. They also publish Enrich's Fashion Quarterly, 50 cents a year, an acknowledged authority on matters pertaining to dress.

"The skies are the color of the priceless sapphire; the air is perfumed with the delicate musky blossom; the blackbird twittereth on the fence; the—" continued in our next. The trouble is to tell when Spring commences in this lovely Yumacine, for it seems to be that season nine months of the year.

Messrs. Powers and Clement, Inspectors of U. S. Internal Revenue, arrived from the East a few days since, and made a short stay in town. These gentlemen are on a tour of both pleasure and business, and will visit all the prominent towns of the coast. Anyone having business with these officials will find them affable and courteous gentlemen.

Mr. Geo. M. Wallace, editor of The Bullion Miner, Philadelphia, has just printed and issued a Mining Directory, for 1881-82. It is a neat 60 page pamphlet; and while it appears to have been at first intended as a directory of mines in which Philadelphia people are interested, it will be found serviceable to all interested in mining. The price of the book is fifty cents.

We have in Yuma ten saloons, five bakeries, six stores of general merchandise, three butcher shops, three newspapers, five restaurants, two hotels, six Chinese laundries, one drug store, one shoemaker, one barber shop, four lawyers, no infers, a choice selection of embryo millionaires, any quantity of ex-officers of "ye military arm of this great and glorious country." And yet people call Yuma a village.

The buildings at the Territorial Prison grounds, consisting of office, kitchen, dining room, and bath house, are rapidly approaching completion. The work is being done in first-class style, and all the appointments will be perfect in every detail. The appearance of the buildings is tasteful and reflects credit up to the architect, Commissioner Neche, who, in connection with Mr. Fred. Fredley, is superintending the erection of the new annex.

Too Awfully Utter.

"Well," said a Deadwood man who had just been introduced to a Brooklyn girl, and who had been asked by her if they had many of those lovely frontiersmen out his way—"Well, mum, we hev right smart of 'em in our neck o' the wood."

"And do they wear fringed leggins and hunt those deer, sweet buffalo?" asked the girl.

"The stage drivers wear fringe and sich, and when a buffalo shines, some one is pretty apt to hook on."

"How supreme! And those gorgeous Indians in their picturesque wigwams of wampum with their blending combination of war-paint; do you often see them?"

"Oh! once in a while we get a hack at a buck, but mostly they are on the reservation," replied the man from Deadwood staring.

"They do come in occasionally, but we don't track with them?"

"The sweet things! And you have such sunsets, out in your mountain fastnesses, and such loves of highway men! Do you ever see those delightful highway men?"

"Not often, mum. They get in the brush; and as for sunsets, we get them regular in fair weather."

"Isn't it just too awfully too?" exclaimed the girl, clasping her hands and rolling her eyes.

"Yes, mum," stammered the Deadwood man, "sometimes it's pretty darn too; leas'twise, it was the day that Toller Duffy came into town on the land-lid."

"An avalanche? Oh! can there be anything more awfully utter than an avalanche?"

It was pretty too, after," hazarded the Deadwood man, dropping into his companion's style of expression. "The cobbler had a—had a crystalline shaft up the side of the butte, and one day he was tooting around up there, and things slipped out from under him."

"Oh! how radiant! How iridescent!"

"Yes, mum; and he began to rattle towards town at the rate of 1,000 miles and three furlongs a minute. We seen him a—uttering down the side of the mountains, ripping up trees and rocks and tooting along, and his iridescent wife flapped out of her shack and began to raise a row."

"Poor little," moaned the girl; "did she stop the glorious avalanche?"

"No, mum, not quite. Duffy fetched up against his shack all standing, and began to howl like a blizzard, 'cause he thought he'd lost his mine. But when they'd tipped the land-side on one end, there was his mine underneath just as he left it. So he could work it right under his winder. That was pretty considerably too, eh?" and the Deadwood man never winked.

"How sublime! How crystalline!"

"But I was going to say, we never had a sunset since."

"So starlike," murmured the girl.

"Yes, mostly starlike. You see the land-side stands there to this day on end, and they don't dare turn it over, for fear of falling in the town, so we don't get any sun, my dear, after eleven in the morning."

"A perpetual twilight! So fearfully, terribly, awfully utter!"

"Yes," murmured the Deadwood man, "it's about as utter as you can get 'em."

And she sat and gazed upon him, wrapped in admiration, while he fell into a reverie and wondered at Brooklyn hospitality in not providing "sand boxes" for strangers.

Gen. Sherman, accompanied by Gen. Hancock, Gen. Poe, Col. Morrow, Miss Sherman, Miss Poe and several friends, passed through St. Louis, over the Iron Mountain road, en route for San Antonio, Texas. The party will then go to Lerdo and Corpus Christi; thence back to San Antonio and visit all points of interest on the line of the Southern railway to Yuma. From there they go to the Yosemite and San Francisco, returning by the lower route to Santa Fe, thence to Denver and east. This is the largest tour of inspection made by Sherman since his war trip, and is expected to occupy ten weeks.

A young lady who graduated from our high school last July is teaching school up in New Hampshire. A bishful young gentleman visited the school the other day, and was asked by the teacher to say a few words to the pupils. This was his speech: "Scholars, I hope you will always love your school and your teacher as much as I do." Tableau, giggling boys and girls and a bushing schoolma'am. — Lawrence American.

The recent discovery of a rich silver mine ten miles west from Deadwood, was followed in forty-eight hours by the erection of West Virginia City, the erection of a Recorder, the settlement of 1000 persons, and the opening of nine saloons and two bars. On the fourth day a daily appeared, and now a stranger entering the town would suppose it was established at least five years. — Ex.

The wife of the bonanza monopolist of California rides in a carriage in Paris that cost $30,000 and requires an annual outlay of $2,000 for repairs. Like the tips of the bell she tells not, neither does she spin, yet Solomon in all his glory couldn't hang on to the tailboard of such a turnout as that.

There was an incendiary fire in Tombstone on the night of March 3d, in the store of M. Calisher, in the center of town. The police broke in and extinguished the flames before much damage was done. D. Calisher was arrested the next day and bound over in $10,000, in default of which he was committed to jail.

Wells' Health Renewer. Absolute cure for nervous debility and weakness of the generative functions. $1. Druggists, Arizona Depot, REDINGTON & CO., San Francisco, Cal.

There is no statement of the disasters that have overtaken the planters of the Mississippi valley, caused by the overflow of the Mississippi river, between Memphis and Vicksburg. For three weeks they have been battling, not only with the elements from above (as it has rained almost daily during this period), but inch by inch the river has been encroaching upon them until now, there is but a dreary watery waste extending fifteen miles inland from both banks. The destruction to dwellings, stock and lands cannot now be estimated.
